A professional coach elicits the natural talents of her clients and provides a vehicle for success in their personal and professional lives. The confidential partnership built between the coach and client results in improved performance and enhanced quality of life.

What makes Linda different from other coaches?

Linda combines an education in human development and psychology with 25 years of experience as an entrepreneur. She delivers honest, practical and innovative support to clients from a wide range of organizations, positions and backgrounds—coaching top executives of large organizations, small business owners, middle managers and their staff.

Linda is results-driven to help her clients truly define, achieve and celebrate success. Linda and her clients work together to determine their professional and/or personal objectives, to identify and further develop the clients' strengths, and to lay out the crucial steps to reach their goals. Throughout the process, Linda provides creative business strategies, effective approaches and encouragement.
